DEMO '99, INDIAN WELLS, Calif., Feb. 8 /PRNewswire/ -- Day-Timers, Inc., a leader in time management and organizational solutions, today announces the release of Day-Timer Digital (<http://digital.daytimer.com>), its free online calendaring service. Through fully integrated time-saving features that includes email reminders, event tracking and e-commerce links, Day-Timer Digital extends the value of current calendaring tools by harnessing the depth, breadth and timeliness of the World Wide Web.

Day-Timer Digital is a natural evolution for Day-Timers, Inc., the company with over 50 years of experience helping people order their busy lives. The service underwent rigorous consumer testing to help ensure that it will meet and surpass consumer expectations and is designed to be used as a stand-alone or to complement existing calendaring tools, whether paper or electronic.

"We inherently understand what people need in a calendaring service, and are uniquely prepared to translate organizational behavior to the Web environment," said Carol Fitzgerald, Vice-President of Marketing and Business Development for Day-Timer Digital. "Extensive consumer testing coupled with our history in developing paper and software products has allowed us to provide consumers with a free, intuitive and secure online calendar that is robust, fun and easy to use."

After consumers complete a brief profile, Day-Timer Digital automatically delivers event information matching the consumers' specified interests directly into their calendars. Consumers then have the option to add those suggested events into their personal schedule. Day-Timer Digital also reminds consumers of important dates via e-mail and pop-up boxes.

By leveraging both traditional content providers and online event aggregators, Day-Timer Digital has developed a comprehensive event database that offers consumers up-to-date information on over 500,000 events. Day-Timer Digital showcases content from: Tribune Media Services, MovieFone(TM), SportsTicker(R), CultureFinder(TM), ParentTime(TM), and TSCentral(TM). The service's e-commerce partners includes barnesandnoble.com, e-Toys(TM), PC Flowers and Gifts(TM), Blue Mountain Arts(TM), Sparks.com, and MapQuest(TM).

Partnerships with best-of-breed Web technology solution providers ensure that Day-Timer Digital is secure and always accessible to consumers. The patent pending service incorporates a three-tier, proprietary architecture as well as the combined technologies of Netscape, Sun's NetDynamics(TM), Cisco, NetGravity, and Oracle, all running in a UNIX environment.

Day-Timer Digital (<http://digital.daytimer.com>) is a free calendaring service that helps consumers schedule and remind themselves of personal, social and professional activities. And, because Day-Timer Digital lives on the Web in a password-protected environment, it is an organizer that's always accessible from any location using any Internet connection.

Day-Timer Digital, Inc. is a part of Fortune Brands (NYSE: FO), the consumer products company.

Web Calendar is the First of Breed to Offer Contextual E-Commerce
Day-Timer Digital Announces Partnership With TSCentral and Expanded Alliance with CultureFinder.com

NEW YORK, April 19 /PRNewswire/ -- Day-Timer Digital (<http://digital.daytimer.com>), the free online calendar and events organizer, today announces the first-ever integrated contextual e-commerce initiative directed to Web calendar users.

Day-Timer Digital's content partners can now deliver event information along with related, actionable commerce opportunities directly to Day-Timer Digital consumers. This model will allow consumers to take advantage of the inherent timeliness of Web calendaring by purchasing items that correlate to event information delivered to their personal calendars.

Smart Ticketing

Day-Timer Digital automatically delivers event information matching the consumers' specified interests directly into their calendars. Through strategic partnerships with TSCentral and CultureFinder.com, Day-Timer Digital consumers will now be able to conveniently purchase tickets to events or sign-up for tradeshow based on information delivered to their personal calendars or via reminders.

With the integration of ticketing, attending events is virtually one click away. Consumers can also email information about events to friends or colleagues and set reminders for important dates and events via a combination of e-mail and pop-up boxes.

"The integration of actionable commerce with event information is one of the true strengths of Web calendaring," said Robert Humphrey, Vice President of Operations and Development, Day-Timer Digital. "And by presenting commerce with content, Day-Timer Digital is the first in the category to deliver event information and provide consumers with the unique benefit of finding events and purchasing tickets instantly."

Day-Timer Digital is the only independent Web calendars to offer content from TSCentral, the leading Internet-based provider of products and services for trade shows, seminars, and corporate events. TSCentral's database includes over 65,000 events worldwide. In addition, Day-Timer Digital is the first online calendar to offer tickets via CultureFinder.com, the leading arts ticketing service which features listings for over 300,000 events in more than 1,300 cities and towns.

"Day-Timer Digital offers a unique promotional vehicle for time sensitive e-commerce ventures," said TSCentral CEO, Robert L. Lapides. "By partnering with Day-Timer Digital we can deliver comprehensive business and professional event information to potential attendees and make it easy for them to register online."

As part of the agreement with TSCentral, Day-Timer Digital will license and promote content from TSCentral to its consumer base. And, of the events that feature online registration, Day-Timer Digital will prominently highlight that capability to consumers from the "event details" page. Day-Timer Digital users can also purchase tickets to cultural events through CultureFinder.com, which offers fast, easy access to tickets for virtually all of the 300,000 live performing arts events listed on the site for a nominal service fee. The site covers over 2,000 venues and organizations in Broadway, theater, classical music, opera, dance, and jazz as well as museums.

"Keeping abreast of activities outside of one's personal sphere of work and family can be challenging," said Eugene Carr, president and CEO of CultureFinder.com. "Partnering with Day-Timer Digital allows us to remind people of fun, engaging cultural events happening in their communities and offer them the convenience of immediately purchasing tickets for events they plan to attend."

About TSCentral

Formerly known as Trade Show Central, TSCentral is the leading Internet-based provider of information, products, and services for the trade events industry. Event organizers, sponsors, exhibitors, service providers, and attendees regularly utilize TSCentral to plan and participate in events efficiently and to help generate additional business opportunities and revenue. Based in Wellesley, Mass., TSCentral's home page is www.tscentral.com.

About CultureFinder.com

CultureFinder.com, the Internet's leading arts guide, recently launched the only national ticketing service for the performing arts on the Web. The service offers fast, easy access to tickets for virtually all of the over 300,000 live performing arts events currently covered by CultureFinder.com for a nominal service fee. The site covers over 2,000 venues and organizations in Broadway, theater, classical music, opera, dance, and jazz as well as museums.

Yahoo! Internet Life magazine (January 1999) recently hailed CultureFinder.com as the Internet's best cultural directory.
